- The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration is an international organization created by the hh United Nations to help provide relief and rehabilitation to Allied areas devasted by the war. - The title and description of the position to be filled have been supplied by the U.N.R.R.A. as follows: "Director, Assembly Center: To take general responsibility for running Assembly Centers, which may consist of hutments, barracks, groups of billets, or possibly camps, each for 3,000 to 10,000 Allied Nationals. These will have been liberated in Germany after serving as deported labourers, prisoners of war, in concentration camps, etc. They are mainly adult males but with a substantial proportion of women and children. The supervising staff will have to see that these displaced persons are housed and fed, perhaps by emergency methods and carefully registered so that their nationality can be determined and arrangements made for their repatriation.
